

Protecting Your Property and Business:

Getting the Most Out of Human Element Programmes

Seminar date/location:

22 September 2010

FM Global

1 Windsor Dials

Windsor

Berkshire SL4 1RS

United Kingdom

An informative, one-day, basic level seminar

Protecting Your Property and Business: Getting the Most Out of Human Element Programmes covers the key procedures needed to help prevent or limit property damage, and the resulting interruption to your business. These programmes include: control of ignition sources; supervision of fire protection systems; managing contractors; maintenance of critical equipment and emergency response.

The seminar will be customised to the specific needs of the participants present, as determined through a brief online survey that will be sent through at the time of booking.

FM Global is committed to working with you to maintain business continuity. We do this by helping you understand the hazards and risks at your plant that may lead to property damage or business interruption. This seminar is an excellent introduction to property loss prevention basics, and will help you work with FM Global and others at your plant to prevent and minimise loss.

This seminar will cover:

- The potential effects of inadequate human element programmes.
- How to set up human element programmes for your site.
- How to get buy-in to human element at all levels in your organisation.
- How to optimise use of resources, inside and outside your company, to ensure truly effective programmes.

Who should attend?

- Loss Prevention Managers
- Site Services and Facilities Managers
- Environmental, Health and Safety Managers
- Maintenance Managers
- Anyone responsible for loss prevention programmes
